

I strongly oppose using cell phones on an aircraft. It would be very unsafe if there is a planned prep, any abnormal activity on board, and would enable terrorist activity as they would be able to monitor the flight attendant and pilot activities and locations. From a passenger point of view, it would be very disruptive as people have a tendency to speak louder while on a cell phone. Flight attendants would lose control over the flight if they were allowed because they would not be able to acquire every passenger's undivided attention in case of turbulence, emergency, and with onboard passenger disturbances.
